

I am imploring you not to do anything that will change Indiana's no-call law re: telemarketing calls. It ain't broke, so don't fix it. If you go ahead w/a national standard, you could exempt states that already have no-call laws on the books. The people of the state of Indiana should not be punished because they got their law enacted before the feds moved on it. We love our law just the way it is. Why don't you enact the same law nationwide?
